We distribute a teacher survey in the Spring and ask teachers to reflect on the school year, and the activities allowed to students throughout the School year. Teachers are asked what they felt worked and what did not, and their suggestions for wishes and improvements for the following school year.

We distribute a parent survey in the Spring, as well as hold individual ILP meetings with parents and students throughout the year. From the surveys and parent feedback, we are able to ask what parents feel is working, and what is not.

From both of these methods of collecting data, we found that the program is effective as it stands.

(c.) Include how program effectiveness was determined, whether or not there has been a change in the program.

By meeting with parents, teachers, and students, we were able to reflect on the effectiveness of the program, and make adjustments as necessary.

We discuss within these meetings what additional programming may be necessary, and whether or not we all feel the students needs are being met. Principals are also involved in these meetings, and participate in the decisions that are made there.
