Notice of Data Incident

At Tesla, we take data privacy and security seriously— so we are writing to tell you about a data incident that involved your information. While we have not identified evidence of misuse of the data in a manner that may cause harm to you, we are nonetheless providing you with this notice to ensure that you are aware of what happened and the measures we have taken.

What Happened

A foreign media outlet (named Handelsblatt) informed Tesla on May 10, 2023 that it had obtained Tesla confidential information. The investigation revealed that two former Tesla employees misappropriated the information in violation of Tesla’s IT security and data protection policies and shared it with the media outlet. The outlet has stated that it does not intend to publish the personal information, and in any event, is legally prohibited from using it inappropriately.

Tesla immediately took steps to contain the incident, understand the scope, and protect your information. Among other things, we identified and filed lawsuits against the two former employees. These lawsuits resulted in the seizure of the former employees’ electronic devices that were believed to have contained the Tesla information. Tesla also obtained court orders that prohibit the former employees from further use, access, or dissemination of the data, subject to criminal penalties. Tesla cooperated with law enforcement and external forensics experts and will continue to take appropriate steps as necessary.

We also arranged resources to determine what data was involved and identify potentially affected individuals. As discussed below, we recently confirmed that certain employee-related records were among the confidential information affected as part of this incident.

What Information Was Involved

The personal information involved concerns data for certain current and former employees, including your name, certain contact information (such as address, phone number, and/or email address), [Extra2] that Tesla maintains in the ordinary course of business in its capacity as an employer. [Extra3]

What We Are Doing

Tesla is committed to the protection of the data it handles and will continue to confirm its safeguards and implement appropriate measures, as well as ensure employees are trained on responsible data handling practices. In addition, although we have no evidence that any personal information was misused in a manner that could harm you, we are supporting those affected by offering a complimentary [Extra1] membership of Experian’s IdentityWorks. This product provides you with credit monitoring, and identity detection and resolution services. Please see Attachment A for instructions on how to enroll.

What You Can Do

In addition to signing up for complimentary credit monitoring, you can review Attachment B, which provides further information about steps you can take to protect your identity in general, should you feel it is appropriate to do so.

For More Information

If you have any questions about the incident, you can call our dedicated toll-free telephone line at 800-607-1589, Monday through Friday 8 am – 10 pm CST, and Saturday and Sunday 10 am – 7 pm CST (excluding major U.S. holidays).

Yours sincerely,

GENERAL STEPS TO TAKE TO PROTECT YOUR PERSONAL INFORMATION

- You should be vigilant against possible “phishing” communications, including from emails that appear to be (but are not) sent from a particular organization.
- Regularly review your account statements and credit history for any signs of unauthorized transactions or activity, and remain vigilant against threats of identity theft or fraud.

STEPS YOU CAN TAKE TO PROTECT YOURSELF WITH REGARD TO CONSUMER CREDIT REPORTING BUREAUS

Ordering Free Credit Report. Please visit www.annualcreditreport.com, or call toll-free at 1-877-322-8228. You can also order your annual free credit report by mailing a completed Annual Credit Report Request Form (available at www.consumer.ftc.gov/articles/0155-free-credit-reports) to: Annual Credit Report Request Service, P.O. Box 105281, Atlanta, GA 30348-5281.

Fraud Alert. When you place a “fraud alert” on your credit report, businesses who pull your credit report will see that you may be a victim of identity theft. The company may then choose to verify your identity before they extend credit to anyone who purports to be you. To place an alert, contact any one of the three main credit reporting bureaus. That company is required to tell the other two bureaus about the alert. When you first place a fraud alert on your account, it will remain for at least 90 days, after which you can renew it. When you do place an alert on your report, be sure that all three major credit reporting companies have your current contact information so they can get in touch with you.

Security Freeze. A “security freeze” or “credit freeze” goes further than an alert and lets you restrict access to your credit report entirely. This is because most creditors need to see your credit report before they approve a new account. If creditors cannot see your file, they may not extend the credit. A credit freeze does not affect your credit score, but you may need to lift the freeze temporarily, either for a specific time or for a specific party if you are opening a new account, applying for a job, renting an apartment or buying insurance.

To place a freeze, you need to contact each of the major credit reporting bureaus. You will need to supply your name, address, date of birth, social security number and other personal information. Credit reporting agencies are required to place/remove a freeze on your credit report without charge.

Below, we provide contact information for the major credit reporting agencies. They can provide additional resources about preventing or remedying identity theft, including by setting up fraud alerts/security freezes and by reviewing your credit report. Fees may be required for some services.
