By providing this notice, Lindberg does not waive any rights or defenses regarding the applicability of Maine law, the applicability of the Maine data event notification statute, or personal jurisdiction.

Nature of the Data Event

On or around December 14, 2021, Lindberg identified suspicious activity related to an employee's email account. Upon learning of the suspicious activity, Lindberg immediately took steps to secure the email account and launched an investigation to determine the nature and scope of the event. The investigation confirmed that an unknown actor had access to two email accounts, one between November 24, 2021 and December 14, 2021 and another for a limited time period prior to April 18, 2021. The investigation could not determine what emails, if any, the unknown actor accessed. In an abundance of caution, Lindberg worked with specialists to perform a comprehensive programmatic and manual review of the information stored in the email accounts at the time of event to identify the types of information contained within the accounts and to whom the information related. On April 29, 2022, this extensive review identified certain customer and/or employee information was present within the records. Lindberg then conducted a thorough review of their records to confirm the identities and contact information for potentially affected individuals. This review was completed on or about September 23, 2022.

The information that could have been subject to unauthorized access includes name and Social Security number.

Notice to Maine Residents

On October 12, 2022, Lindberg began providing written notice of this event to two (2) Maine residents. Written notice is being provided in substantially the same form as the letter attached here as Exhibit A.

Monitor Your Accounts

Under U.S. law, a consumer is entitled to one free credit report annually from each of the three major credit reporting bureaus, Equifax, Experian, and TransUnion. To order your free credit report, visit www.annualcreditreport.com or call, toll-free, 1-877-322-8228. You may also directly contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below to request a free copy of your credit report.

Consumers have the right to place an initial or extended “fraud alert” on a credit file at no cost. An initial fraud alert is a one-year alert that is placed on a consumer’s credit file. Upon seeing a fraud alert display on a consumer’s credit file, a business is required to take steps to verify the consumer’s identity before extending new credit. If you are a victim of identity theft, you are entitled to an extended fraud alert, which is a fraud alert lasting seven years. Should you wish to place a fraud alert, please contact any one of the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below.

As an alternative to a fraud alert, consumers have the right to place a “credit freeze” on a credit report, which will prohibit a credit bureau from releasing information in the credit report without the consumer’s express authorization. The credit freeze is designed to prevent credit, loans, and services from being approved in your name without your consent. However, you should be aware that using a credit freeze to take control over who gets access to the personal and financial information in your credit report may delay, interfere with, or prohibit the timely approval of any subsequent request or application you make regarding a new loan, credit, mortgage, or any other account involving the extension of credit. Pursuant to federal law, you cannot be charged to place or lift a credit freeze on your credit report. To request a credit freeze, you will need to provide the following information:

1. Full name (including middle initial, as well as Jr., Sr., II, III, etc.);
2. Social Security number;
3. Date of birth;
4. Addresses for the prior two to five years;
5. Proof of current address, such as a current utility bill or telephone bill;
6. A legible photocopy of a government-issued identification card (state driver’s license or ID card, etc.); and
7. A copy of either the police report, investigative report, or complaint to a law enforcement agency concerning identity theft if you are a victim of identity theft.

Should you wish to place a fraud alert or a credit freeze, please contact the three major credit reporting bureaus listed below:
